Geneva: DayOneNetwork was recently notified of an award from The Community Foundation of Fox River Valley in Aurora. The Foundation's generous grant will assist DayOne in their Document Imaging and Content Managing System Project.

Stephen Taylor, Executive Director of DayOneNetwork said, "We are so fortunate to have a foundation such as The Community Foundation of Fox River Valley in our service area that understands the critical needs of this project in order for our organization to continue to run smoothly and provide the most efficient services to our clients and their families." The Foundation is a publicly supported community trust whose funds come from an accumulation of many charitable gifts contributed over the years by civic minded donors and are carefully distributed to various not-for-profit organizations which serve the people of the greater Fox Valley area

DayOneNetwork is a not-for-profit; community-based agency located in Geneva providing service coordination and advocacy services to children and adults with developmental delays and/or disabilities and their families. Persons residing in Kane and Kendall Counties and Hanover Township of Cook County are eligible for our services at no cost to the individual. DayOne and its programs serve as the front-door to the service delivery system and "guide those we serve and their families through the maze of community services to access needed supports and services."
